Introduction

The goal of the School Counselor intern guide was to provide School Counselor interns, new School Counselors, counselor educator site supervisors, and school supervisors of School Counselors a resource document to help new staff become acclimated at a school site. In surveying districts in the state of New Jersey, many schools did not have a document to assist new staff. Very often, new School Counselors and School Counselor interns expressed that they were learning experientially and often reactively, sometimes after mistakes occurred. Yet others still felt unprepared or unsure after completing their internship; some did not feel fully prepared to transition into a full time school counselor position.

It is the sincere hope of the committee of School Counselor Supervisors, School Counselors, and graduate students that created this document, that this document will be used and continually revised to provide the best possible resource and support to our new School Counselors and interns.

Survival Guide: Tips from a School Counselor Intern

Taking Initiative as an Intern and Following Through

As an intern, taking the initiative to address an issue or something that is going on at your site shows that you are paying attention and are willing to put the work in. Also, following through on an assignment, or something you are asked to participate in or help with is an important way to make a statement.

Observing Other Counselors with Students

Although you may be more comfortable with a particular counselor in the department, make an effort to sit in on as many of the various sessions with different counselors as you can. This gives you a different perspective on how to address many different topics and you will learn new things from each counselor. Every counselor has their own style, and since you are still developing yours, it will only be beneficial to pick up little tips and tricks for yourself while observing!

Interns Working with Students

Interns will be assigned students to work with by the school counselor or the supervisor of school counseling. It is CRITICAL that interns keep the school counselor in the loop of when you will be meeting with their students, the nature and content of the sessions, and continue to collaborate. Collaboration ensures that you are aware of the circumstances for each student, whether working with the student is a good fit, and keeping the counselor aware to transition back when you leave your internship. Most importantly, consultation helps to protect you legally, as well as good practice ethically.

Professional Presentation

It is always better to be overdressed rather than underdressed. As time goes on at your internship site, you will see how the other counselors dress and you can base your daily dress off of that. Until then, you want to present professionally and wear appropriate clothing, use appropriate language, and be a professional School Counselor.

Use of Time

There will be times—especially on your first day and in the beginning—that you will not have too many responsibilities and things to occupy your time. Use this time to look at school policies, sit-in on the other counselors sessions with students, and look into research projects/presentations you can take on. School Counselors are always busy and on the move, and schedules can be unpredictable, so it is important to understand this and be able to go with the flow and attain a certain level of self-sufficiency. Also, don't be afraid to ask the counselors what they need help with. They may not be sure of how to best utilize your skills and abilities when you first start, but when you make yourself available and show you are there to help and learn they will give you different tasks/projects. It's all a part of the learning experience. Don't waste the time you have! You want to be as prepared as possible when you go to enter the field.

Personal Goals

What do you wish to accomplish as an intern? This is an important question to consider. Is there a special topic you want to learn/explore more in the school setting? What do you want to have accomplished by the end of your time at the internship?

Awareness of Strengths and Weaknesses

As I am sure you have already learned, being self-aware is key when developing yourself as a professional School Counselor. Being keenly aware of your strengths and weaknesses as an intern will help you here and now, as well as in the future. Knowing the areas that need improvement will allow you to become better at planning and working on that. Knowing your strengths will allow you to be confident in what you have to offer and what you are good at. Self-exploration is always a good thing. You can also ask your supervisor and other counselors in your school for constructive criticism and what they see; this will only help you grow as a School Counselor.

"Grace Under Fire"

Crises and crazy days can happen somewhat frequently and unexpectedly in a School Counseling Department. It is important to be able—or learn how to—keep your cool and be a team-player to address the issues at hand. Regardless of the situation, it will always be better if you know how to cope and handle yourself in these stressful scenarios.

Don't Worry, You're New!

Please do not worry about not knowing enough or being unprepared! That is why as graduate students we have these internship responsibilities: to learn. Your supervisor is there to help you, guide you, and teach you as you go. With that being said, do your research on the district. I always say it is better to try and learn/know as much as you can, or what is available to you going in so that you are prepared. Once you are at your site, ask your supervisor to share their experience in the district.

- Electronic Violence & Vandalism Report System (EVVRS)
 - “The EVVRS collects information only about those incidents that fall under the categories defined in the EVVRS Incident Definitions. To be reported on the EVVRS: 1.  - In 1965, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) was passed to provide new education funding to ensure equitable access to educational resources and opportunities for all students. ESEA provides requirements that states and schools districts must follow to qualify for funding. Every several years, Congress reauthorizes and revises ESEA. No Child Left Behind (NCLB) in 2001, and Every Student Succeeds Act or ESSA in 2015 are the acts that most recently reauthorized ESEA. Here's a great ESSA video overview. How can new ESSA revisions enhance afterschool and out-of- school (OST) programs? ESSA offers opportunities for coordinating afterschool/OST and school day supports for student success. Click here to learn more about ESSA.
 - Title I
 - Planning- ESSA requires state and local level education agencies to solicit stakeholder input in determining accountability measures, supports, and tracking measures for student outcomes.
 - Accountability- Requires states to choose one or more indicators of school quality and student success as part of their accountability system, such as school climate, chronic absenteeism or student engagement, much of which afterschool and OST programs support.
 - Intervention- ESSA requires targeted assistance to schools specifically mentioning after school as an instructional strategy to increase student academic achievement.
 - Title II Part B
 - "Literacy Education for All, Results for the Nation" provides states opportunities to use afterschool programming to enhance educational success. This section provides grants to "develop or enhance comprehensive literacy instruction" to entities serving "children low-income families". ESSA specifically states that these literacy activities can be "augmented by after-school and out-of- school time instruction".

- Title IV
 - Part A- "Student Support and Academic Enrichment Grants" provide opportunities at the LEA level for expanding funding opportunities to coordinate partnerships and increase collaborations between schools and STEM afterschool programming.
 - Part B- 21st Century Community Learning Centers revisions require state agencies to solicit input from stakeholders in the proposal process for 21CCLC funds. All of the examples above are ways in which OST programs and professionals can be a part of New Jersey's submitted ESSA plan.
- FERPA
 - The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) (20 U.S.C. § 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99) is a Federal law that protects the privacy of student education records. The law applies to all schools that receive funds under an applicable program of the U.S. Department of Education. FERPA gives parents certain rights with respect to their children's education records. These rights transfer to the student when he or she reaches the age of 18 or attends a school beyond the high school level. Students to whom the rights have transferred are "eligible students."
 - Schools may disclose, without consent, "directory" information such as a student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, honors and awards, and dates of attendance. However, schools must tell parents and eligible students about directory information and allow parents and eligible students a reasonable amount of time to request that the school not disclose directory information about them. Schools must notify parents and eligible students annually of their rights under FERPA. The actual means of notification (special letter, inclusion in a PTA bulletin, student handbook, or newspaper article) is left to the discretion of each school.
 - FERPA FAQ
- Free Application for Federal Student Aid \(FAFSA\)
 - Federal Student Aid, a part of the U.S. Department of Education, is the largest provider of student financial aid in the nation. FAFSA provides more than $150 billion in federal grants, loans, and work-study funds each year to more than 13 million students paying for college or career school.  - ABS-School Counselors may be designated as Anti-Bully Specialists
 - HIB FAQ

- Home Instruction
 - Provision of one-to-one or small group instruction in the student's place of residence or other appropriate setting due to a health condition, need for treatment, court order or exclusion from general education for disciplinary or safety reasons. Within 5 days of the student leaving the school they must be put on home instruction. If they are on home instruction for greater than 30 days they need an IPP (District Policies, 2016).
- Home Schooling
 - N.J.S.A. 18A:38-25 states that students are required to be educated between the ages of 6 and 16. However, there is also the provision that students can receive “equivalent education elsewhere”, which can include the parent home schooling the child.

The IPP sets forth the student’s present level of performance, measurable goals and short-term objectives or benchmarks that encompass behavioral and social competency, as well as curriculum and individually designed instructional activities to achieve the goals and objectives” (New Jersey Department of Education [NJDOE], 2015).
- Individualized Education Plan (IEP) (United States Department of Education [USDOE], n.d.).
 - Each public school child who receives special education and related services must have an Individualized Education Program (IEP). Each IEP must be designed for one student and must be a truly individualized document. The IEP creates an opportunity for teachers, parents, school administrators, related services personnel, and students (when appropriate) to work together to improve educational results for children with disabilities. The IEP is the cornerstone of a quality education for each child with a disability.
 - School counselors cannot change an IEP student’s schedule without the review of the case manager and consent from the parent.

- The IEP is a legal document, and changing the schedule without parental consent can be a violation of the students rights.
- Reasonable modifications: under a regulatory provision implementing Title II of the ADA, public entities are required to make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures when the modifications are necessary to avoid discrimination on the basis of disability, unless the public entity can demonstrate that making the modifications would fundamentally alter the nature of the service, program, or activity

[N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1(a)]; and which are “designed to assist staff who have difficulties in addressing students' learning, behavior, or health needs.” [N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1(a)]
 - Action Plan
 - Used to maximize the chances for short-term success, as well as long term changes of the individuals’ involved, the team continues the I&RS process for each case, as necessary, to achieve the desired outcomes. This plan is created by the I&RS team in conjunction with the student's parent(s).

Accommodations are based on teacher observations and interventions already used. No testing is required.

- Learning-Disability Training Consultant (LDTTC)

(2) In any State that has a compulsory residency requirement as a component of the State's compulsory school attendance laws or other laws, regulations, practices, or policies that may act as a barrier to the enrollment, attendance, or success in school of homeless children and youths, the State will review and undertake steps to revise such laws, regulations, practices, or policies to ensure that homeless children and youths are afforded the same free, appropriate public education as provided to other children and youths. (3) Homelessness alone is not sufficient reason to separate students from the mainstream school environment. (4) Homeless children and youths should have access to the education and other services that such children and youths need to ensure that such children and youths have an opportunity to meet the same challenging State student academic achievement standards to which all students are held" (NJDOE, 2015)

 - PPRA also concerns marketing surveys and other areas of student privacy, parental access to information, and the administration of certain physical examinations to minors. The rights under PPRA transfer from the parents to a student who is 18 years old or an emancipated minor under State law.
- Recognized ASCA Model Program \(RAMP\)
 - The Recognized ASCA Model Program (RAMP) recognizes exemplary school counseling programs that follow the ASCA National Model. Implementing the ASCA National Model takes three to five years. Your program, has measurable goals that tie into the school’s goals, has administrator support, has an advisory council dedicated solely to the school counseling program that includes all the stakeholders, has annual and weekly calendars that reflect the suggested use of school counselor time. Create a yearly classroom guidance action plan and regularly deliver classroom guidance lessons tied into program goals. Regularly deliver small-group lessons based on students' and the school's specific needs. Regularly collect process, perception and results data on all areas of the program. - School Psychologist

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ)

- What is the best way to get a job?
 - Get involved with the New Jersey State School Counselor Association (NJSCA) and/or your county school counselor association. Demonstrating your skills to practicing school counselors in the associations allows you to network with professionals in your field.
- Should I be a member of both ASCA and ACA?
 - Yes. ACA is a great resource and you can get liability insurance as a graduate student and professional school counselor. ASCA is your national organization and has excellent resources (e.g., ASCA Scene) and professional development (e.g., conference, webinars).
- Are there opportunities for me to conduct research and/or present at any conferences?
 - Yes. Research opportunities are available through your graduate school, as well as sent out through the NJSCA listserv from NJ counselor educators. NJSCA also allows for graduate students to present at the fall conference.
- What should I do if I don't think I'm receiving enough opportunities to meet with students and obtain direct hours?
 - The first place thing to do is have a conversation with your supervisor. An honest dialogue is always helpful, as the supervisor may not be aware of your expectations or needs to complete in your graduate program. In addition, it is always helpful up front to have this conversation before the internship starts, as well as to outline what you would hope to accomplish during your internship. The key for you as interns is to be proactive.
- Do consultations count as direct or indirect hours?
 - Indirect hours. Indirect services are provided on behalf of students as a result of the school counselor's' interactions with others including referrals for additional assistance, consultation and collaboration with parents, teachers, other educators and community organizations. (ASCA, 2012)
- Can a student graduate early from high school?
 - Yes. There should be a policy and regulation for "early graduation" that you can access and review your school's individual requirements. It is also advisable to discuss students considering this option with the director of school counseling, principal and the parent.

- The state of New Jersey has an alternative option allowing students to accrue 30 college credits and pass the state assessment (e.g., PARCC) to get a high school diploma.
- Is it okay for my resume to go over one page?
 - Yes, however... The answer is subjective. Some practitioners would state that you would want to try and keep it to one page, while others would state that two full pages is fine if it helps to paint a better picture. The key to the cover letter are the highlights, and should not be a repetition of your resume.
- What will make me stand out in a pile of resumes?
 - The answer may seem obvious, but how are you different. Below are a few examples of how you can stand out in the process.
 - Go beyond the standard 700 internship hours.
 - All graduate students in New Jersey are required to complete 700 hours of practicum and internship. Stating that on the resume or cover letter is obvious. If you state your actual hours and they are well above that (e.g., 1000), then you have more experience than other candidates.
 - Gaps in training for desired position. Get additional training!
 - Ex: If you are going to be a high school counselor, most graduate programs do not have training in college or financial aid planning, assisting students with disabilities (e.g., IEP, 504) or lesson planning. Go out and get experience and training in these areas before you apply.
 - Examples of additional trainings could include, but not limited to:
 - HIB Training or Certification (e.g., through NJPSA)
 - ASCA U training (e.g., College Specialist, Data Specialist)
 - UCLA course on college planning
 - HESAA courses on financial planning (FREE)
 - Additional courses (e.g., special education, play therapy)
 - College tours offered to school counselors (FREE)
- How do I find the weaknesses of a school?
 - It's all about data, and it is very much accessible!
 - Begin by creating a school data profile with the template you would receive with the American School Counselor Association (ASCA) national model book. By creating a data profile of a three year period or longer, then data trends can be identified. The trends that you are able to identify will be the “gaps” that need to be addressed through the counseling curriculum, individual and group counseling.

- The NJ School Performance Report found at <https://homeroom5.doe.state.nj.us/pr/> and the NJ Violence, Vandalism and Substance Abuse (EVVRS) report found at <http://www.nj.gov/education/schools/vandv/> are excellent resources to start to build your school data profile.
- How do I create positive working relationships with other school counselors?
 - Be a team player! As a new school counselor or school counselor intern, you are joining a team. Take the opportunity to observe and learn from others who have been in the school. They can teach you the in’s and out’s of the school policies, politics, and other areas that are of importance. Also, it is important to remember that working together is a two way street. If other people are helping you, find ways to share your strengths to help build up other school counselors, the department and the school. In the end, we are all here for the students, so working together to achieve those goals is paramount!
- How can I make a positive impact at your school?
 - The answer to this question is really individualized! I would suggest speaking with the other school counselors, your supervisor of school counseling, and your school principal on this question. Reviewing the school data profile you created earlier will also help you to identify areas that need to be addressed in your school. By focusing on the “gaps” in the school and creating proactive program goals for students, it is likely you will see improvement that will positively impact the students and your school.
- If there is downtime, what should I be doing during those times?
 - There is always something to do!
 - Ask the school counselors and supervisor if there is anything you can assist with or prepare for a future program.
 - Downtime is a good time to look at the school data and create proactive program goals. Developing the program itself is also a good use of time.
 - Checking student progress on prior established goals and objectives.
 - Complete a webinar for professional development (e.g., ASCA U).
